OUR TEAM

The key to EuroLingo's success is the value we place on our team members; they are our most valuable asset. It is due to their skills, knowledge, and business acumen that we confidently guarantee the quality of all our finished products.

We have developed a careful staff-selection process to be certain that all our team members are up to our quality standards.

Our diversified in-house teams are a fine balance of handpicked professionals, and include Business Analysts, Team Leaders, Project Managers, Multimedia Designers, Software Engineers, Translators, Quality Assurance Engineers, and others.

All our teams work closely together with their work being coordinated by a project manager. They combine their solution-based technical expertise with their solid project management skills to produce the highest quality products within the tightest deadlines. They maintain a cooperative workplace atmosphere even under pressure through their proficient communication skills, and they always rise to meet new challenges.

SERVICES

Translation

A major component of any localization project is the translation; if the translation is accurate, meaningful, and well written this is the primary key to the acceptance of a document or product in a new market. For this reason we at EuroLingo spare no effort to ensure that our translations are of the highest standard.

Our full-time certified in-house translators are among the best in the business. They are all native-speakers, handpicked for their well-tested professionalism in providing quality translations. In addition to their basic translation skills, they have also specialized in the language and terminology of specific fields, such as automotive, legal, software, hardware, e-Learning, telecom, military, etc. and they work in their specialist teams under a group leader.

Translators at EuroLingo are supported by the company through regular and extensive training programs and having access to the latest translation and localization tools on the market.

Desktop Publishing

Another vital element towards the acceptance of a product or document in a new market is its visual appeal, and this is where the importance of the third major component of our localization team comes in, our multitasking desktop publishing (DTP) experts. They are all fully trained in the use of a comprehensive range of graphics tools and are able to select the most suitable colors, fonts, bullets, images, etc. according to the suitability and needs of individual markets.

EuroLingo's DTP professionals format documents on both Macintosh and PC and concentrate on the page formatting and layout, DTP quality assurance checking, DTP tidying-up, graphics localization, document conversion, postscript production, bitmap editing, and HTML generation in any document they work on.

Localization Engineering

EuroLingo's localization engineering experts are second to none, and they are the second major component of our localization team. Our engineers have all been carefully selected for their extensive in-depth knowledge and wide experience in the localization field. Due to this, they are highly skilled at choosing the best technical solutions from the many different operating systems, utilities, translation tools, development environments, and localization models on the market to meet our client's objectives in the most cost effective and efficient way. They can also ensure a smooth transition for the final product to its new environment, even within the tightest budget.

Testing

Before EuroLingo delivers any product to our clients, it has to pass through our stringent performance testing phase. This is the stage in our localization process that gives us the confidence to guarantee that any newly localized product will function smoothly in the new location. All possible aspects of the product are tested using the latest market compatible techniques and technologies.

Below are some of the product-related tests that EuroLingo could perform:

WHY US

Project Management

The success of any team stands or falls on its management. That is why at EuroLingo we invest so much time and effort in the selection of our Project Managers and in the training and support we offer them. To guarantee successful project outcomes.

When a new client approaches us for a localization project, we assign them a personal Project Manager (PM) who will be their key contact person throughout the whole project. He will be available to answer any of their questions and fulfill any project requests. It is the PM's responsibility to work closely with the client to elicit their exact requirements for the localization project. They allocate the best team members to meet all requirements. Build project plan, including deadlines and milestones; to coordinate the project through all its phases; and finally to schedule the delivery of the completed project. The PM's agenda is the customer's milestones, his concern is the timely execution of the project which meets the customer's quality expectations, and his performance is assessed by the level of customer satisfaction.

Quality Control

Every step of the EuroLingo process, and every product that our teams produce, are governed by the cornerstone of our business, the highest standards of quality assurance. This is why EuroLingo has confidence in the guarantee of customer satisfaction we give with every document and every project we localize.

Our quality assurance engineers use a wide range of testing and quality assurance tools in order to ensure the functionality, usability and cultural suitability of our localized products.
